PROGRAM:

Clayton Public Schools are “public schools with a private school feel.” Clayton High School houses approximately 400 students in grades 9 thru 12. As a district, we pride ourselves in meeting the needs of our students as we prepare them for the opportunities of the future.

Clayton School District has invested time, money, and resources to align our curriculum with the National Common Core Standards, train teachers in best educational practices, expand our course offerings, and provide student services. The recent renovation at Clayton High School included additional classroom/lab space, new athletic fields, and a greenhouse. Students and teachers have access to the most recent technological tools to assist in teaching and learning. All three of the district’s schools offer "smart" classrooms, with interactive technology, including Smart Boards and document cameras. Our students have use of iPads and computers within their classrooms. We are proud to say that our significant progress has recently attracted local and national attention. In 2010, U.S. News and World Report awarded Clayton High School a bronze medal for closing the educational gap for minority students. In November of 2011, we received national recognition when U.S. News and World Report reported that our students had access to the most technology tools within the nation. As a district, we can take tremendous pride in the accomplishments of our students and staff.

Our students also have a wide variety of activities, clubs, and sports to become involved in, including our very successful JROTC program. Additionally, we offer on-line courses so that our students are given access to an abundance of opportunities and areas of study. All of this leads to a great environment for success for the students of the Clayton Public School District.
